
Personal Data: What can you expect?

Following the recent adoption of the EU data protection reform, companies handling personal data will need to focus on their privacy policies and internal practices to ensure they meet the high new reformed standards. In this context, it is crucial to draw the line between personal data to which data protection rules apply and simple information. Here is some advice to help you to make this distinction.

Experts :

Virginie LIEBERMANN

COUNSEL

Avocat à la Cour, Member of the Luxembourg Bar, 2008